The Search for Extraterrestrial Life

Using sophisticated spacecraft, scientists are probing the planets in orbit around our sun as well as discovering planets in orbit around other stars. The ultimate goal is the discovery of life on other worlds … in some cases, life far more advanced than we.

The Greatest Wonders of the Solar System

In this, the greatest age of discovery in the history of the human race, spacecraft have sailed out from the port of earth to unveil vast canyons, enormous volcanoes, huge hurricanes and staggering cliffs of ice far grander than any on earth.

The Lives of the Stars: From Nebulae to Supernovae and Black Holes

The stars are the energy cells of the universe yet only now are we beginning to truly understand their complex lives from fiery births in colorful clouds of gas and dust to cataclysmic deaths as exploding suns and mysterious black holes.

To Galaxies Beyond

Our sun is but a tiny speck in a great “city of stars” known as our Milky Way galaxy. Yet beyond lie hundreds of billions of other galaxies in a complex and still barely understand web of creation stretching out into space and back to the dawn of creation.
